What you'll learn

London is one of the most expensive places to run a business and a solicitor's fees can be prohibitive, particularly when workspace is already at a premium. Our professional workshops help you to increase your negotiating power by making commercial property law accessible, creating a more level playing field between you and your landlord.

Workshops are led by Bill Parry Davies from Hackney firm Dowse & Co. Bill has been a practising solicitor in Hackney since 1982. He advises and acts for businesses and community organisations and has extensive experience of commercial property cases. His specialisms include civil litigation, particularly disputes arising out of ownership of land, commercial landlord and tenant disputes and planning law.
